Activity Based learning

We use activity based learning to help young people develop and unearth their personal development skills

Relatable Role Models

Our facilitators are relatable role models with lived experience who use storytelling, creativity and positive psychology to inspire young people

High Energy/ Fun

If you aren't having fun, neither are they! We help our facilitators create environments engage young people and make them want to grow

Youth Statistics..

60% YOUNG PEOPLE HAVE "LOST" CONFIDENCE IN THEMSELVES

65% PRIMARY SCHOOL CHILDREN WILL WORK IN JOBS THAT DON'T EXIST

85% EMPLOYERS OUTWEIGH ATTITUDE OVER APTITUDE

Everyone should have a voice in the process

89% of 16-18 years olds say they've never been asked their opinion on the future of their neighbourhood.

Even though 82% want to have a say.

Testimonials

From 4th August - 8th September we ran the first cohort programme and had an average of 20 young people per session, with ages spanning from 15-21 years old. We have also had a great range of guest speakers, including staff from TFL and the Earls Court International Film Festival.

SHAPE
YOUR FUTURE

Nadine, 17

"I came along and I've attended every workshop! I wanted to improve my personal development and public speaking as well because I'd like to be a lawyer one day..."

Some feedback from the pilot phase

When asked what they enjoyed about the workshops, respondents said:

- 'How active it was and how it made me think outside the box'
- 'Everything! The vibes and I enjoyed the speakers talking about their lives'
- 'Meeting new people from the creative industry and getting the opportunity to ask them questions I'm curious about'
- 'How interactive it was and how it allowed me develop skills like public speaking'
- 'Networking isn't daunting when you get into it'

Some other feedback:

- 100% learnt something new from the workshops
- 100% would recommend the programme to friends and family
